It crosspendence of the Etebmond Dispatch.!

Presenting October 22, 1881.

The Republican meeting at the Accelemy of Music last night was one of the liveliest political pic-nics held in this city for a long time. Ex-Governor Alongo Hart, of Ohio, one of the men from abroad who has been imported into Virginis, was the flest speaker. He was listened to attentively after an introduction by General Mahone. He is a gentleman of intelligence and cultivation, far above the level of the andicence he addressed, composed to a large degree, as it was, of negroes. A protective tariff formed the burden of his speech.

Mr. Hart was followed by a number of colored speakers, who undertook to discuss local politics. Here the fun began, and the Ohio ex-Governor was treated to a spectacle in southern politics that he had probably never before witnessed. If he had ever dreamed of it.

A large number of Evans men were present in the audience. They are so numerous everywhere, that it seems that no Re-dreamed of it.

A large number of Evans men were present in the audience. They are so numerous everywhere, that it seems that no Republican meeting can be held without them. They listened respectfully to all discussion of national issues, but when the local cervass was touched upon they made themselves heard in a manner altogether unmistakable. Benjamm, a colored orator of Richmond, followed Hart, and his first reference to politics in the Fourth district was met with lustycries for "Evans." He met with repeated interruptions of this character, as was also "Professor" Mitchell, "Colonel" John T. Wilson, of Norfolk: Eido, of Williamsburg, and others. Some of these speakers administered severe rebukes to the colored men who were cheering and bawling for Evans whenever Brady's name was mentioned, but their remarks were without effect. The scenes of confusion were at times wild and almost uncontrollable. The greatest exatement prevailed, however, during the speech of "Colonel" Wilson, who made a statement in reference to the speech of "Colonel" Wilson who made a statement in reference to Joseph P. Evans, and challenged the latter to a denial of it. Evans was seated latter to a denial of it. Evans was seated in the gallery. There were loud cries for him, in response to which he arose, came down stairs, and amid great confusion and cheering marched to the stage. He pronounced Wilson's statement to be a lie, and when Wilson said he could provejit Evans again said it was a lie, and declared he would give Wilson one hundred dollars to prove what he had charged. The scene at this point could hardly be described. It was one of intense confusion, and it is probable if any snow of force or violence had been used the meeting would have terminated in a riot. force or violence had been used the meeting would have terminated in a riot. The meeting, with its continued interruptions, was kept up until near 1 o'clock this morning. It is regarded as fortunate that the original plan of holding the meeting in the open air was changed. The feeling between the two Republican factions is growing more bitter and intense each day.

BUSTINGS COURT PROCEEDINGS. In the Hustings Court Processions, in the Hustings Court to-day the grand jury found a true bill against Thomas Whyte, late cashier of the Planters and Mechanics Bank, charging him with being an accessory to W. W. Whyte, the teller, in making certain fraudulent entries in the teller's book, whereby the said Thomas Whyte was credited with $5,150 as deposited January 18, 1883, and $5,150 as deted January 18, 1883, and 85,150 as deposited January 21, 1883, when, in truth no such deposits were made. The grand jury on Seturday having found the indict-ment against Mr. John Beckwith "not a true bili." as a matter of course the same disposition was to-day made of the indictment charging Thomas Whyte with being on accessor to the offence charged in this case. (Special telegram to the Dispatch.)
WYTHEVILLE, V.A., October 22, 1834.
The Synod of Virginia convened here last night in its ninely-seventh seasion.
The opening sermon was preached by the returing moderator, the Rev. W. T. Hall, D. D., of Lynchburg. The Synod was then constituted with prayer.

Owing to the late arrival of the train from the East, which brought about 100 members, the organization was not effected until this morning, as there were but few members present at the opening of the session.

The Rev. W. M. Murkland, D. D., of Baltimore, was elected moderator by accimation, and Rev. Alexander Sprunt and Elder E. M. Cruichfield were elected clerks.

A highly interesting letter was received from the Rev. William Brown, D. D., a member of the body, now residing in Florida. The Presbyterians of your city, as well as throughout the Synod and South and many others, will be pained to learn that Dr. Brown has been smitten with total bladness. A committee, consisting of blindness. A committee, consisting of Rev. Drs. Armstrong, Pryor, and Preston, was appointed to prepare a reply embody-ing the sympathy and effectionate re; and of the Synod.

SUFFERINGS OF GRAELY'S PARTY. Commander Schley's Report of the Findin of the Survivor.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch!

WASHYGTON, D. C., October 22.—The report of Commodore Winfield Scott Schley of the expedition under his command for the relicf of the Greely party has been submitted to the Secretary of the Navy. It cites the orders under which the expedition was organized, and then enters upon a graphic narrative of the events of the voxage.

The greater portion of the report is given up to a description of the finding of Greely and his party and the rescue of the survivors. Commodore Schley describes as follows the impressive scene inside of Greely's vors. Commodore Schley describes as the lows the impressive scene inside of Greely's tent:

Licuienant Greely was found in his sleeping-bay, his body inclined forward and his head resting upon his left hand. The Book of Common Prayer was open and held in his right hand. He appeared to be reading prayers to Private Connell, whose concition was most desperate and critical. He was cold to the waist, all sensation of hunger gone, and was speechless and almost preathless. His eyes were fixed and almost preathless. His paws had dropped, his heart was barely putsating, and his body temperature was very low.

This tender scene of a helpless, almost famished officer, consoling a dying companion, was in itself one that brought tears to the eyes of the strongest and stoutest who stood about them on the merciful errand of relief. Sergeauts Brannerd and Fredericks and Hospital-Steward Briederbeck were extremely weak and hardly able to stand; they were no longer able to venture away from their camp to seek food, nor prepare their simple diet of boiled scalskin, nor to collect leaches, nor te catch shrimps, upon which they had to depend to a great extent to sustain life. Their face, hands, and limbs were swollen to such an extent that they could not be recognized. This indicated that the entire party had but a short lease of life, probably not more than forty-eight hours at most. This fact was recognized by them all, and had come to them from their experience during that doing and desolate winter in watching their dying companions, as one after another passed away from them forever. that long and desolate winter in watching their dying companions, as one after another passed away from them forever. Poer Sergeant Ellyson was found in his sleeping-bag, where he had lain helpless and hopeless for months with hands and feet frozen off. Strapped to one of the stumps was found a spoon which some companion had strapped there to enable him to feed himself. His physical condition otherwise appeared to be the best of all the survivors, and this may be attributed to the tact that each of his companions had doled out to him from their small allowance of food something to help him on account of his complete helplessness to add anything to someting to need him of account of his complete helplessness to add anything to his own by hunting about the rocks for lickens or catching shrimp. He suffered no waste of strength by exertion incident thereto. This case of Ellyson was such as no waste of strength by exertion incident thereto. This case of Ellyson was such as only brave and generous men, suffering with each other under most desperate circumstances, could think of. Sergeant Long was very much reduced, though in somewhat better condition than some of the others. His office of hunter of the starving party made it necessary to increase slightly his pittance of food to maintain his strength, that he might continue the battle for food and hie for the helpices. In his case, however, the effect of this continuous effort had told its story in his wasted form. Shorter and shorter journeys were made in good weather, while in the frequent bad weather of that region his strength was so much impaired that when the joyful signal of the whistle was heard lie had only enough left to stagger to the rocks overlooking the water to see if the signals heard had proceeded from ship in sight. His first visit was a bitter disappointment, as he saw nothing. A second visit, fitteen minutes later, brought him within fifty yards of the Bear's steam-cutter, and in view of the relief ships coming sround Sabine. When the steam-cutter ran into the beach where Long was seen he rolled down the ice-covered ciff and was taken into the cutter. He informed Lieutenant Colwell that the location of the camp was just over the ciff. Lieutenant Colwell that the location of the

In the case of Sergeant Ellyson the med-ical officers were fearful from the first that In the case of Sergeant Ellyson the medical officers were fearful from the first that his chance for life was very small. As soon as healthful food was available and the digestive functions should be reëstablished tuily a healthful round of blood circulation would begin its distribution of new life to the injured parts, and inflammation would naturally occur. If Ellyson's strength should increase more rapidly than the inflammation ampution of the injured parts would perhaps save his life.

Several days after his rescue (June 28th) Dr. Green reported that Ellyson was threatened with congestion of the brain. The symptoms increased rapidly until the poor fellow lost his reason. At God Haven his condition was so critical that the surgeon of the expedition, after consultation, determined to amputate both feet above the ankle as the only chance of life left the sufferer. The disease, however, triumphed, and smid the bleak scenes that had surrounded him for three years in his heroic sacrifice and within the desolate solltude of that years of everlasting ice and snow. sacrifice and within the desolate solitude of that region of everlasting ice and snow, surrounded by his sorrowing comrades, be

He had lain in a sleeping-bag for weeks on account of his gradually falling strength. He was unable to stand alone for any length of time and was almost helpless except in sitting postures. All the pangs of hunger had ceased; his appearance was wild; his hair was long and unkempt; his face and hands were covered with sooty, black dirt; his body scarely covered with worn-out clothes; his form was wasted; his joints were swellen, and his eyes were sunken. His first inquiry was if they were not Englishmen, but when he was told that we were his own countrymen he paused for a moh's own countrymen he paused for a mo-ment as if reflecting, then said "and I am rlad to see you."

The condition of his camp was in keep ing with the scene inside the tent—desperate and desolate. The bleak bareness of the spot, over which wild the Arctibird would not fly; the row of graves o the little ridge 100 feet away, with the pro-truding heads and feet of those lately buried—a sad but silent witness to the daily increasing weakness of the little band of survivors; the deserted winter-quarters in the hollow below, with its broken wall invaded by water from melting snow and ice above it. The dead bodies of the two companions were stretched on the ice-foct that remained; the wreiched apology for cooking utensils, improvised by them in their sore distress, handly deserving the name; the scattered and worn-out ciothes and sleeping-bars of the dead; the absence of all food save a few cups full of boiled scalskin screps; the wild and weird scene of snow, ice, and glaciers overlooking and over-hanging this desolate camp, completed a necture as startling as it was impressive. I hope never again in my life to look upon such wretchedness and such destituthe little ridge 100 feet away, with the pr note the as startling as it was impressive. In the per never again in my life to look upon such wretchedness and such destitution. The picture was more startling and more deeply pathetic than I had ever dreamed could be possible. In beholding it, I stood for a moment almost unmanned, and then realized that if the expedition had demonstrated any one thing more than another it was that an hour had its value to at least one of that party.

more than another it was that an hour had its value to at least one of that party, stouter hearts than mine felt full of sorrow. Eyes that had not wept for years were moistened with tears in the soleanity of that precious hour in the lives of that heroic little band of sufferers, until this moment so hopeless and helpless.

Ry telegraph to the Dispatch.)

New York, October 22.—General Butler strived in his apecial car in Jersey City this morning. He was driven over to the Fifth-Avenue Hotel, in this city, where he remained during the forenoon. At 1 o'clock this afternoon he started for Boston. He will return the latter part of this week and resume his tour of the State.

A committee from the National Labor party this morning called at the Democratic National headquarters and presented to the National Committee the following resolutions adopted by them at a meeting held in Clarendon Hall last night:

Whereas Benjamin F. Butler is travelling through this State masquerading as a Protectionist and friend of the workingman; be it

Resolved, That we call the attention of

Resolved, That we call the attention of

Resolved. That we call the attention of the workingmen and anti-monopolists to the following facts, that prove him to be a mone polist and enemy of labor:

1. His whole career in Congress was that of a greedy, unserupulous tool of monopoly, a salary-grabber, and a railroad, bank, and corporation advocate.

2. He only left the old parties and accepted the nomination of the Greenback and Anti-Monopoly parties when he had outlived all hopes of reward from Democrats and Republicans, and couling into the labor movement at the eleventh hour to reap the reward of other men's labor.

3. He is not a Protectionist, as he run for Governor of Massachusetts and was elected.

os, he is not a Protectionist, as ac r in tor Governor of Massachusetts and was elected as a revenue reformer on a free-trade plat-form. All his letters and speeches in that campaign were in favorof free trade, and his manager, Colonel Plympton, and his co-reformer, Grady, are zealous free-traders. 4. When the Governor of Massachusetts he signed a bill to employ convicts at hat-making in the face of an earnest protest from the hatters of that State, and vetoed a bill to limit the bours of the labor of civilbill to limit the hours of the labor of children in mines and factories. He also employed pauper labor—Italians—cleaning the streets of Boston, and on other public works of that State to the injury of laboring classes, and in other ways injured the workingmen of Massachusetts when he had political power instead of recommending measures in their interest, which he now claims should be passed for the beaefit of workingmen.

claims should be passed for the beaefit of workingmen.

5. General Batler attended the Democratic Notional Convention as a Democrat and pledged his delegation to support the candidates nominated there, and personally stated that he would support Bayard or Thurnan (both Free-Traders) if either was nominated. He balked the Convention (when he could not dietate) on the Iving pretext that the Democratic party refused to adopt a labor plank in the platform, in the face of the fact that the Committee on Resolutions placed in the platform every plank asked for by the labor party.

*Resolved*, That we denounce Benjamin F. Butler as a fraud and impostor, and advise all workingmen to support the candi-vise all workingmen to support the candidates of the Democratic party.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

Albany, N. Y., October 22,—Boone, the assailant of Governor Cleveland, was arraigned before Justice Gitman at the Police Court at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The court-room was thronged by a curious crowd. Boone, who looked careworn, asked and obtained permission to make a statement. He said he had been greatly worried over his brother's case, and had scarcely sleptior several nights. He admitted his conduct had been hasty, and said he was conduct had been hasty, and said he was sorry fer what he had done. He also in-sisted that he never intended doing the Governor any harm. Justice Gutman said he had received a letter from Governor Cleveland stating that he had no desire to prosecute the prisoner, and recommending lentency.

Boone was then discharged. He, with his wife and father-in-law, left this evening for home.

Hendricks at Pullman and Chicago.

(Br telegraph to the Dispaten.)

Chicago, October 22.—Hon, Thomas A. Hendricks spoke here to night on the invitation of the trade and labor unions. He arrived at Pullman this morning. At noon about three thousand residents of that suburb a: d the neighboring towns of Kensington and Roseland assembled in front of his hotel, and Governor Hendricks addressed them briefly from the balcony. This afternoon a committee from the labor unions went to Pullman and escreted him to this city, arriving at 5:15 P. M. The time of his arrival was not generally known, and consequently there was ro demonstration at the depot, He entered a carriage with the committee and tered a carriage with the committee and was driven to the hotel. The Great Brought Ended.

On the 28th of October, 1840, persons present at the Northport camp-ground, in Whido county, saw a meteorite fall into the water near the camp. As it fell it burst into fragments, og that was the conclusion drawn by those who witnessed its descent. Scarch was made at the time for fragments, but none were then found, the tide at all times covering the spot where the meteorite struck the water. Two years ago one who witnessed the full again made a search, and some small fragments were recovered. From time to time the search has been continued, and other fragments have been brought to light, one of which was considerately sent to Professor F. C. Robinson, of Bowdoin College. More recently quite a large mass, weighing perhaps twenty retunds, was recovered, and this mass Professor Robinson has now in his possession, much to bis gratification. He will proceed to analyze it.

Liverpool Finances.

[18] eable to the Dispatch.]

Liverpool, October 22.—The Morning Post, referring to the statement concerning Liverpool finance prospects in the financial column of yesterday's London Standard, advises London journals to ascertain the truth before publishing such unfounded reports. It adds that the troubles in the sugar market ceased three weeks ago, and that there is not the slightest ground for apprehending the impending bankruptey of any one of the American steamship lines. None of the Liverpool papers have heard anything about the large failure in that city, vegue reports of which have been circulated in some quarters.
